In addition to the live coverage listed for the television and radio networks, many other events of the royal tour will be broadcast on a regional or local basis.

On the Cover—

The cover picture of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, was taken by Anthony Armstrong Jones in the Music Room of Buckingham Palace, prior to the last royal visit to Canada. In this picture Her Majesty wears a gown of white tulle embroidered in silver and gold. On her left shoulder is the blue ribbon of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. Among her jewels are the Garter Star and the badge of St. George, set in diamonds. The Duke of Edinburgh wears the uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet.

In this issue of CBC Times appears a story on CBC preparations for covering the Royal Tour on radio and television (page 3), plus a list of all live radio and television programs concerned with the tour (this page). Each week thereafter, CBC Times will print details of CBC coverage. Next week's issue will also contain two special articles. The first, by James Bannerman, tells the story and the significance of the St. Lawrence Seaway which the Queen and President Eisenhower will open on June 26. The second tells of how the CBC, advised by fashions consultant Joy Davies, will keep women listeners and viewers informed on what the Queen is wearing to the various functions.

THE ROYAL COUPLE ARRIVES

Governor-General Massey greets Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip as they descend the ramp at Uplands Airport, Ottawa, at the beginning of the last royal tour in 1957.

The Royal Visit on CBC

ON JUNE 18 Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, and Prince Philip, will arrive at Torbay airport, Newfoundland. For the next six weeks the Royal Party will travel through Canada. Fifty CBC-TV cameras will cover the event at 131 locations while many film cameras and radio microphones will follow the Royal Party on its 10,000-mile trip from Newfoundland to the Yukon.

The schedule of events to be covered live by the CBC appears on the opposite page. In addition to these 14 major events on TV and the 16 on radio, films and taped commentaries will describe the tour on newscasts and on the special Royal Visit Review programs to be heard Monday through Saturday on CBC radio, and Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays on CBC-TV. (Please check radio and TV listings for program times in your area.)

The TV coverage of Thursday's arrival at Torbay airport marks a special event for the CBC. It marks the conquest of the 69-mile Cabot Strait between Cape Breton Island and Newfoundland, the longest link between two TV towers on the microwave network which will enable Canadians right through to Victoria, B.C., to see the arrival ceremonies live. Canadian National Telegraphs finished this nine million dollar section of the network in time for the visit despite the worst winter and aftermath in memory.

Six months intensive planning has gone into the CBC coverage of the Royal Tour. It will involve about 600 CBC commentators, producers, technicians and program planners. Something like 360 crates must be identified and addressed for shipping and reshipping over the 10,000 mile journey, and the highly complex and delicate electronic equipment in them must be serviced for constant use.

CBC-TV will supplement standard cameras with special equipment. A 60-inch lens mounting turned out in the CBC technical shops will seem to bring the Queen from up to 350 feet away to within arm's length. A single camera unit built into a limousine transmits pictures as it moves. Still again, a "creepie-peepie" portable TV camera—television's answer to radio's "walkie-talkie"—will give greater mobility to TV.

Much time has been spent in research and in briefing commentators. "They must know when a headdress is a bearskin, a feathered bonnet, a glengarry or a balmoral," says Thom Benson, who directs the planning and co-ordination of all Royal Visit coverage. "Commentators must know at a glance whether officers are carrying claymores, sabres, cavalry swords or just plain swords which, of course, must not be confused with cutlasses."

Like military uniforms, women's clothes must be described correctly. The CBC has engaged Miss Joy Davies, a fashion consultant, to brief commentators and advise them on what Her Majesty will be wearing each day.

Co-ordination meetings between the English and French CBC networks began last fall. As the same TV picture is used on both French and English networks (with separate voice commentaries) interviews cannot be used on both while graphics like maps and charts, written in both languages, must be kept to a minimum. It was also found that research for the commentators must be done in both languages. This was faster than doing research in one language, then translating into the other; it also enabled the expression of the different interests of the two language groups.

Interest in the Royal Visit extends far outside Canada. The CBC International Service will broadcast in sixteen languages to all parts of the Commonwealth, to Europe, North America, Latin America, Africa and Asia. The CBC will fly films not only to Australia but to Mexico. The BBC will send its own team of radio and film men, with commentators, to work with the International Service. The CBC will provide radio and TV service for the three main U.S. networks — ABC, NBC, CBS — and radio programs for Mutual and Voice of America. The opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway is of special interest to many shipping countries: a network hook-up of France, Belgium and Switzerland will take a program; so too another network feeding all French language stations in Africa, and as far apart as Tahiti and St. Pierre; and so also will networks in Germany. (The flow is not all one way: On July 6th, when Her Majesty visits Chicago, the CBC will take American radio and TV broadcasts.)

Biggest coverage of the Royal Tour goes to the Seaway opening by Her Majesty and President Eisenhower on June 26th. Fourteen CBC cameras plus radio facilities will cover the ceremonies. These will include live events, like the official opening when the Royal Yacht, Britannia, passes through the channel to the first lock at St. Lambert, Quebec.

Part of the two-hour Seaway program will be a documentary, showing the realization of the 350-year-old dream. Scenes from the new seaway ports of Toronto, Hamilton, Sarnia, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Port Arthur - Fort William, and Duluth-Superior will be included. A huge floor map in the Radio-Canada Building in Montreal will demonstrate the size of "the eighth sea" and the importance of the seaway.

On radio, the documentary-actuality will include the voices of people like Louis St. Laurent and Harry Truman. "We are fortunate in having on tape the voices of Canadians and Americans who had so much to do with the seaway development," says Liston McIlhagga, radio supervising producer for the Royal Tour.

Perhaps TV supervising producer Bill Bolt sums it up: "Years from now," he said, "the film recording of this TV broadcast will be an important historical document."

Summerweight Spectaculars On CBC-TV

A series of twelve "summer-weight spectaculars" using the best in comedy, jazz, classical music and the dance starts on Thursday, July 9, on CBC-TV. Among guests for the series will be comedians Mort Sahl and Alan Young (both Canadian born) while Walter Susskind will appear on one of the classical music shows.

"We'll have three each of Comedy Parade, Jazz Parade, Dance Parade and Classical Parade," said producer Norman Sedawie. "We'll aim for an informal show with the emphasis on talent rather than on sets. The series, beginning with Dance Parade, is an experiment for CBC-TV."

The new CBC-TV summer schedule will also feature three other new variety shows from Toronto, plus one each from Winnipeg and Halifax. They are:—

- A panel show, tentatively called Live a Borrowed Life, replacing One of a Kind for the summer on Wednesday nights;

- A program featuring The Rhythm Pals, Ruth Walker and the music of Billy Richards replaces Saturday Date;

- The Joan Fairfax Show replacing Cross Canada Hit Parade on Tuesdays;

On CBC Wednesday Night

Face of the City

A one-hour documentary on the world's fastest-growing city, in the words of those who live there

THE BIG, throbbing, mushrooming city of Toronto is a far cry from the original little Fort Rouillé of 1749. And trying to analyze its personality is like looking into a kaleidoscope—it's different every time you turn around.

Recently freelancer Allan Anderson went bravely out with his tape-recorder to attempt the Herculean task of pin-pointing the current tempo, moods and outlook of the huge amorphous mass of flesh and granite spreading along the shore of Lake Ontario, and of trying to find out what's going on inside it. He talked to some of the people who have helped to establish the character of the city, the pace-setters, the sort of people others follow, the ones with their fingers on the pulse of a boom town.

The finished up with 12 hours of fascinating revelations and opinions about the big town, covering all aspects of its life. Then he and writer Morley Callaghan put their heads together and Callaghan wrote a 15-minute script in which he looks at Toronto as a travelled native son.

The result will be heard on Face of the City, an hour-long radio documentary on CBC Wednesday Night. With objective directness Callaghan's script will link the choicest of Anderson's subjective interviews, weaving them into the colourful mosaic that is Toronto.

Anderson talked to Kildare Dobbs, broadcaster and editor; editor Ralph Allen; columnist Gregory Clark; columnists and broadcasters Gordon Sinclair and Pierre Berton; housewife Catherine Fraser; Joe McCulley, warden of Hart House at the University of Toronto; writer-broadcaster Lister Sinclair; Dr. J. R. Mutchmore of the United Church in Canada; jazzman Mike White and actress Charmian King. He interviewed officials of the elite Granite Club, an Italian grocer, a lady cop, navvies, a newsboy, foreign students at the university, people on the island ferry, the captain of a German freighter in the harbour, musicians in a jazz band, workers on street construction, the subway, and on the presses of the Star Weekly. He recorded night talk on the corner of Spadina Avenue and College Street, and he went to Montreal and talked to Kathy Breslin, who used to live in Toronto and loathed it, and René Levesque, commentator on the CBC French network, who is much interested in the character of Canada's sprawling communities.

Talking about his home-town, Morley Callaghan says: "No one can name Toronto for what it is... it is the unknown city, unknown in that it so rapidly changes and becomes something else, always changing and becoming, and I who have lived here all my life sometimes feel like a stranger. They used to say the blue-noses folded up the sidewalks on Sunday here. It is still a closed Sunday except for sport, but in the daily life the bluenose has lost his sovereignty. I like the new, big-city tolerance. The city has a Jewish mayor. It couldn't have happened 20 years ago. I like the brightness and neatness of the girls behind the counters in the stores, and the quiet friendliness of the taxi drivers who have none of the wildness of those in Paris. I like the way the people invite you to their homes instead of meeting you outside, as they often do in New York and Europe. A man from Montreal who used to live in Toronto 15 years ago said to me on his return: 'The whole feeling of this town has changed. It's a much rougher town than it used to be. It feels like Akron or Cleveland.' But he didn't

- The Show that Jack Built from Winnipeg in the Folio time slot on Tuesdays;

- A program from Halifax featuring Don Messer and his Islanders replacing Country Hoedown on Fridays.

"We're particularly looking forward to the contributions from other centres," said Bob McGall, supervisor of variety for CBC-TV. "After years on network radio, Don Messer and his Islanders will bring their music to TV in the first commercial series Halifax has produced for the network. The Show that Jack Built is a popular Winnipeg show featuring Jack Shapiro and his orchestra, with guests. As for the Toronto variety shows, you better get details from the producers themselves."

First producer was Bob Jarvis of the Saturday Date replacement. "The Rhythm Pals, recently from the West Coast, are perhaps best known for their western singing but they handle standards pops with equal ability," he said. "Ruth Walker is a young nightclub singer with a lot of talent. Apart from some guest shots on Here's Duffy she hasn't been seen on TV. And then there's Billy Richards and his band. This is Billy's first TV show as orchestra leader though he was previously with the Holiday Ranch group. As for guests we'll be looking for new faces, people with something different in their act. In general, we're after a simply presented but imaginative commercial show with standard pops and novelty numbers."

Next came Jim Guthro, and again the show's title was not quite firm; probably Live a Borrowed Life. "People keep saying the format is complicated," said Guthro, "but it's not. There'll be three guests. Each will be an expert on some historical figure. He'll assume the identity of that figure and the panel must find out who he is. They'll have three minutes, and for every minute the contestant stays the course, he get $50.

"After that, the panel will try to trip him up with questions about the historical person whose life he borrowed," Guthro went on. "We'll supply some of the questions (not until after the first section is completed of course) and the panel will be expected to ad lib on others. For every wrong or too slow answer, the contestant loses ten of his dollars. In addition to this, we'll bring present-day celebrities onto the show." Moderator and panel have not yet been chosen.

Canada—Geographic Absurdity?

SOMEONE once said that Canada is a geographic absurdity. The geographic lines seem to run north-south between Canada and the United States rather than east-west: the Canadian maritimes seem geographically linked more with the New England states than with the rest of Canada, Central Canada with Central U.S., Plains with Plains, and West Coast with West Coast. How, then, has Canada maintained its independence?

"This is one of the big questions that Professor Creighton discusses in A Long View of Canadian History," says Cliff Solway, producer of that program which will be seen in two parts, on June 16 and 30 (replacing Press Conference). "One argument against this 'geographic absurdity' thesis is being dramatically illustrated right now with the St. Lawrence Seaway opening. This is part of that east-west axis round which, Professor Creighton argues, Canada has grown."

Donald Creighton is professor of history at the University of Toronto. He has written a number of books which are both scholarly and widely bought—Dominion of the North and Commercial Empire of the St. Lawrence are two—and is probably best known for his two-volume biography of Sir John A. Macdonald.

A Long View of History is a discussion between Professor Creighton and Paul Fox, Professor of Political Science at the University of Toronto, who has been seen on many CBC-TV programs, including Open House. Over a five-and-a-half hour period the two men talked about Canadian history. This gave two hours of filmed conversation which was edited down to two half-hour programs.

"These programs have two main facets," Solway went on. "On the one hand, as the title suggests, they give a view of Canadian history taken as a whole, not just as a fragmentary collection of dates and facts. Secondly, they provide (Please turn to page 15) about a fox who disguises himself to scare the other animals.

Whistletown

Adventures in a toy shop.

CBWT—Junior Magazine

This week Jiminy Cricket talks about the five sense, Hank Hedges introduces the second episode of "Border Collie"—the adventures of a Scottish sheep dog. "Pool of London," a film about London as a port, will be shown, and there will be another "Young Canada" newsreel. John Clarke is host.

Sky King

Adventure series about a flying rancher. This week — "Abracadabra." Sky and Penny foil the attempt by a clever magician to steal a famous diamond while he is supposedly in a sealed trunk under several feet of water.

Toby Robins, Gordon Sinclair, Pierre Berton, and a guest panelist try to identify headline news events of the past. Fred Davis is moderator. From Toronto.

Chevy Show

Variety show starring Janet Blair and John Raitt as co-hosts.

Comparisons

"Age of Dissent." Such outspoken young men as Toronto playwright John Gray, advertising executive Russell Moore, British author Colin Wilson and poet Christopher Logue comment on various topics, including democracy, leadership, education and class distinction. Frank R. Scott of McGill University's law faculty analyzes the views expressed by these "angry young men" of England and Canada.

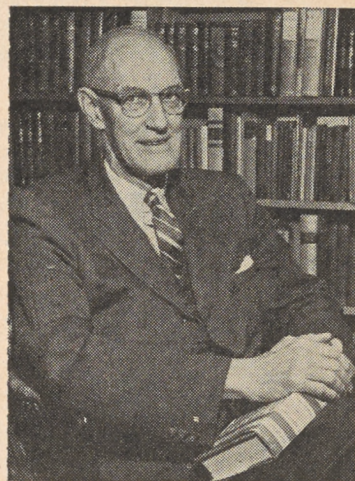

A Long View on Canadian History

PROGRAM NOTES

JUNE 17

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information.

Our Miss Brooks

Comedy series starring Eve Arden as a high school teacher. This week — "Capistrano's Revenge." When Connie and Mrs. Davis lose a pet bird their friends deluge them with substitutes. They end up with five pets when the original returns.

Open House

NEW FACES—Make-up tips from our beauty expert, Lydia. A QUIET SERVICE: THE MEDICAL LIBRARY — Today viewers will hear about some of the drama of the medical library, how it receives emergency requests for information about new treatments, searches out information on rare diseases, and does a score of other jobs that help our physicians to give us the best possible service. To explain some of the functions of medical librarians, Open House has invited a distinguished guest from the Mayo Clinic—Mr. Thomas Keyes. Another function of certain libraries is demonstrated by a collection of objects from the Academy of Medicine in Toronto. Many libraries also serve as a sort of museum of medical history. Marian Patterson of the Academy will bring along some of the unusual items she and her staff have collected, ranging from early versions of the scalpel to old-time feeding bottles.

P.M. Party

Audience participation show for women, with emcee Gordie Tapp, Rex Loring, vocalist Donna Miller, and Rudy Toth's orchestra. Today's guests are Vic and Marian Miller, who will demonstrate the art of hand-balancing. From Toronto.

Howdy Doody

Strange things start happening around the clubhouse. The electrical appliances begin to do things they're not supposed to.

Walt Disney Presents

This week—"Niok," the adventures of an Indo-Chinese boy, Ayot Van Koen, and his pet baby elephant, Niok. Also, Walt Disney shows how the imaginative pictures of Heinrich Kley inspired Disney cartoonists to create Dumbo, the flying elephant, and the elephant corps de ballet from "Fantasia."

The Unforeseen

"Change of Address," a murder drama by Robert Arthur about a man who moves from Toronto to California. His bossy, dominating wife does not care for their new home in California, but the man himself is delighted with the house—especially the cellar with its soft, easy-to-dig dirt floor. From Toronto.

say it was unfriendly. That stuff is all gone, as becomes a boom town. The American ballplayers with the Leafs speak of Toronto as a friendly place. Visiting jazzmen like the town for its friendliness. The old form of social pattern seems to have broken down."

In Face of a City Gordon Sinclair discusses the three periods Toronto has gone through in his lifetime, which he roughly categorizes as open, bluenose and tolerant. And he talks about dope, whiskey and girls in Toronto. Gregory Clark illustrates an interesting theory he has about the city, involving what he calls "a momentum of greatness." Kildare Dobbs comments on "the appallingly bad taste of the rich in Toronto." He says nobody will admit that Toronto has social distinctions, but it has. Ralph Allen notes that Toronto is not as self-satisfying as Montreal, is as literate as any North American city, and will become as good a city as anyone would want to live in, although her ups and downs are not over yet. Pierre Berton agrees. He describes Toronto as "the only place worth living in," but adds that it's the most immoral city in Canada. In comparison, he says, the west is uninformed, and Vancouver is not as friendly. Lister Sinclair thinks the city combines the worst features of Pittsburg and Boston. Charmian King finds an air of great excitement and vitality in Toronto. On returning from living abroad she was particularly conscious of the fact that things are really happening there—and most of the people Anderson talked to agreed. They'll interpret the expression on the Face of the City, and their remarks promise to be both enlightening, controversial, and highly entertaining.

Bill Davis, who will produce the first four Joan Fairfax Shows, says that the program will contain lots of girls—including an 11-piece all-girl orchestra—but "the male won't be forgotten. We expect to have at least one male guest a week." Joan Fairfax, of course, is well known for her appearances on The Denny Vaughan Show and the Wayne and Shuster Show. Special item each week will be a request medley with people from all walks of life ringing Joan on the set and asking for their favourite number. Bill Davis has booked a singing trio from Winnipeg for the first two shows: the Van Dorn sisters who have made guest appearances on a number of shows including the Billy O'Connor Show and Come Fly With Me. Samuel Hersenhoren will direct the music for the Joan Fairfax Show and Don Gillies will do the choreography.

products from being sold as loss leaders, but for the last few years in Canada it has been illegal for a manufacturer to insist that his goods be sold at the "suggested list price," and he cannot refuse to sell to stores who mark his goods down. There are many points of view on this matter, and today viewers will hear what some of the people most concerned—including consumers—have to say about it.

Road to Rosetown

Last of three-part agricultural series. This week's program investigates the decline of the small rural communities as roads are improved and transportation costs decrease. Rosetown, Sask., with a population of about 3,000, will be shown as an example of a larger community gradually taking on social and economic institutions that were once a part of the neighbouring smaller communities. Host Norn Garriock, assistant supervisor of the CBC's national farm department, will interview Dr. William Baker, sociologist in charge of community planning for Saskatchewan, and Jack Pinkney, editor of the weekly newspaper in Rosetown.

CANADIAN HISTORY

a philosophy of history. Professor Creighton sees history as essentially about people and made by people; it cannot be reduced to economics or geography, though these are very important factors. I should also emphasize that these are the views of one man; other historians naturally have other views."

In the programs, Professor Creighton takes issue with a number of popular notions about Canadian history. There is the theory, taken over from certain U.S. historians, that the frontier was the essential factor in Canadian evolution. According to this theory, from the frontier comes the equalitarian impulse and the dynamism which characterized North American growth. This may have been valid in the United States, says Professor Creighton, but much less so in Canada. He offers an alternative viewpoint.

Again, many people see Canada's French-English system as a divisive influence. Professor Creighton suggests that on the contrary it has been a powerful influence in Canada's remaining Canadian and not becoming another state.

We are Canadian because we want to be Canadian. We are more socialistic than we realize. Our Prime Ministers, from Macdonald down to Diefenbaker, and including Laurier and Mackenzie King have certain important policies in common. The Riel Rebellion, the French and Scottish influences, the unjust overshadowing of important historical figures by the Prime Ministers of Canada and the equally unjust overshadowing of these Prime Ministers by British and United States political figures—all these are topics treated by Professor Creighton in the two programs.

But the major thesis is this: we are Canadians because we want to be Canadians. And we have every justification for so wanting. Professor Creighton says of Canada, "This is an exacting and demanding land. As you read Canadian history you have a sense of effort, of struggle. I don't mean that this is a harsh and niggardly country. I do mean that we've had to fight hard to make it our own and get the best out of it."

And of our national identity he says, "We do pay a very high price for it . . . Obviously our roads, our railways, the transport system, our airways, our communications, our CBC—the whole thing is a heavy burden for a small people to bear. But it's a burden that gives us at the same time a very rich and satisfying life. And above all, it is our own life."

SATURDAY TV NOTES

Naked City

Great Movies

"Morning Departure," with John Mills and Nigel Patrick. A submarine on a routine cruise hits a mine and sinks to the bottom of the sea with 12 men trapped inside. Naval authorities try various plans to rescue the trapped sailors. (This 1950 British release was titled "Operation Disaster" in the U.S.)

The Merry Widow

• Thank you, CBC Folio, for your marvellous production of Lehar's The Merry Widow. I was completely enthralled by it.—Mrs. W. Van Wynsberghe, Morris, Man.

• You will be pleased to know that I suffered more when I watched Lana Turner and Associates strangle the Widow on the screen. Your treatment of the old girl was a bit more humane. However, the pace you set was more like a chariot race than a musical, and while the Hassal translation may not be stilted it seemed to be amputated at the knees. Good gosh, men! Why don't you let the Widow grow old gracefully? Many people still love the lively widow, but the treatment she has recently received from Hollywood and our own noble CBC will certainly bring about her early demise.—E. R. V., Winnipeg.

• May I express my sincere thanks to CBC Folio for the magnificent performance of The Merry Widow. I think that the conductor should have been introduced to the TV audience along with the rest of the artists at the end. It is, after all, his magic baton which is largely responsible for the success of the entire work. CBC should get rid of 'Cross-Canada Hit Parade, Country Hoedown, P.M. Party, and Saturday Date and have more great music on TV. Perhaps the intelligence and taste of the public are underestimated. Lend a deaf ear to those who complain about so-called "highbrow" programs.—Miss E. S. L., Edmonton.

• I have never seen a better show than The Merry Widow. This was your best. Congratulations!—W. C. B., Winnipeg.

• Just a note of appreciation and thanks for bringing us such a wonderful season of CBC Folio. The programs that particularly stand out in our minds are The Nutcracker, Salad Days, Emlyn Williams' A Boy Growing Up, and of course, yesterday's Merry Widow. Hoping that you will continue to bring us programs of such high calibre.—M. T., Winnipeg.

• Having just watched your delightful production of The Merry Widow, the season's last Folio presentation, I am finally acting on a long-time intention and writing a sincere appreciation and "thank you" for the series. It has been as a consistently high quality this year. As far as we are concerned, Folio and Close-Up represent the main return on our TV investment, and we are hopefully looking forward to seeing both back next year.—Mrs. S. P. McA., Winnipeg.

Rawhide and Tempo

• Congratulations to G. W. Mitchison of Saskatoon for his comments on the abridgement of Rawhide and the introduction of Tempo! Inane music with the periodic addition of the word "Tempo" cannot, I feel, add greatly to anyone's edification or enjoyment. For my part I would be far happier with a quarter-hour of recorded music than with the repetition of "This is Tempo" and "You are tuned to Tempo." The CBC might even manage to extend Rawhide's time to fill in the gap.—R. MacGregor Dawson, Winnipeg.

• Re G. W. Mitchison's and J. Grasley's comments — why anyone wants to listen to Rawhide, I do not know. At large, Tempo is all right.—P. G. Cope, Winnipeg.

• I would like to add my voice in protest of the treatment meted out to Rawhide and the late afternoon news. One does not know at what time to tune in now to get them. I certainly do not want to listen to the rest of Tempo and I just can't believe that the majority of Rawhide listeners do either.—Ronald C. Craigie, Furness, Sask.

• I join the protest against your treatment of Rawhide. He is a national institution; his satire and the maturity of his contributions display a quality not common in Canadian broadcasting, and to make him merely a part of a pot-pourri is somewhat of an insult. I am a firm supporter of the CBC and I feel sure that you can have your frolics in Tempo without messing about with a program as valuable as Rawhide. — Montague Larkin, Edmonton.

These comments are being passed on to our program department. In the meantime, readers will now find the starting time for each "Tempo" pro-

MUSIC ON RADIO

by BOYD NEEL, Dean, Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto

PROBABLY the most exciting theatrical events ever to take place in London were the seasons of Russian Ballet and Opera just before the first world war. Sir Joseph Beecham, the father of Sir Thomas, financed these wonderful seasons and a whole new aspect of theatre was suddenly revealed to the Western World.

On June 30, 1913, Diaghilev's Russian Company produced a new ballet in London, which, in this case, was not a Russian one. It was called La Traquédie de Salomé and had music by Florent Schmitt, the famous French composer, who was then at the height of his powers. Choreography was by Boris Romanov and, from what I can gather, this ballet consisted almost entirely of solo dances by Karsavina who

The Square Dance Story

ANY HOEDOWNER will tell you that if you've never grabbed your partner and do-si-do'd in a good old-fashioned Saturday night square dance, you've never lived—and age is no excuse. From 8 to 80, men and women have been having themselves a good time in group dancing for centuries, a cheap, informal and exceedingly lively way of enjoying each other's company and letting off steam to music that defies anyone's toes to keep still. The story of where these dances came from and how they developed in Canada is ethnically as vari-flavoured as a bowl of chutney, and the Summer Fallow series proposes to illustrate this on CBC Trans-Canada Monday night.

The script has been written by Toronto actor-writer-director Joseph Furst, who will also act as narrator. Mr. Furst describes his own background as "a square-dance of racial integration." Austrian-born, he has French, Italian, Hungarian, Polish and Ukrainian strains in his ancestry. He'll trace the evolution of the square dance, and the music that typifies it will be played by the orchestra under Morris Surdin, who has written special arrangements for the occasion. There'll be a caller on hand to liven up the show, and if you haven't swung your partner to Mr. Surdin's peppy tunes in your own living room by the end of the half-hour show, it won't be the fault of the cast.

North Americans have more or less assumed ownership of the modern square dance, and certainly its current popularity stems from this continent. But many of the dances which seem as western as jeans are really immigrants from a wide variety of civilizations. Some of them originated in France, Germany and other continental countries, found their way to Britain with invaders and other visitors from across the Channel, and they were coloured by the traditions and personality of the British. Many of them which had been

Whodunits, Gotham And Deer Diets

This week's line-up in the Post-News Talk period on CBC Trans-Canada covers such diversified topics as whodunits, New York City, and deer diets. On Monday night Charles Graham of Montreal gives a talk called I Used to Write Whodunits. You may have read some of his detective stories—The Crime on the Cote des Neiges, Murder Over Doral, and The Body on Mount Royal, three of the few with a Canadian setting. Mr. Graham tells how he came to write them, and why they have had no successors. A Harvard graduate in economics, he is now doing advertising and freelance writing. On Tuesday night Dr. N. T. Gridgeman of the National Research Council in Ottawa talks about Our New York, which he deals with as an international city, "American by courtesy only. New York belongs to mankind and mankind can be proud of it." Friday night listeners learn some interesting facts about Diet and Deer. Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan, head of the zoology department at the University of British Columbia, will discuss reasons for changes in Canada's deer population from one decade to another.

Trio in B flat major, opus 21..... Dvorak

Violinist Albert Pratz is concertmaster of both the CBC Symphony Orchestra and the Hart House Orchestra. Professional engagements have taken him to England and the United States, including appearances with the NBC Symphony under Toscanini. Cellist Isaac Mamott was born in Russia in 1907 and came to Canada in 1914. After studying with his father and private teachers in Winnipeg, he began his professional career there. He went to Toronto in 1940 to join the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in which he was principal cellist until joining the CBC Symphony in 1952 as principal cellist. Pianist Leo Barkin was born in Warsaw in 1905; he studied under his father at the Warsaw Conservatory of Music. He made his debut as an accompanist at the age of eight and has devoted most of his time to this field since that time, although many believe he could easily have made a name for himself as a concert pianist if he had wished to. However, he prefers a less sensational career — one which permits him to live quietly in Toronto with his wife and three children.

POSTMARK U.K.

Following Sam Pollock's "News from Home," Arthur Bush visits the Mermaid Theatre situated at historic Puddle Dock on the banks of the Thames—the first theatre built in London for hundreds of years. British actor Bernard Miles has hoped for years to build a theatre that erects no barrier between the actors and the audience. Just as in the Elizabethan times the actors in this new theatre will be surrounded by their audience, with no proscenium, curtains or any scenery at all to cut them off from the audience. Puddle Dock is one of the oldest parts of London, and to build the Mermaid Mr. Miles first had to clear the ruins of a bomb-damaged seven-storey building and had to raise every cent of the money needed by private subscription. He collected from other actors, from business firms and from workers in the City of London who paid a half dollar towards buying a brick.

was one of the great stars of the Russian company, others being Pavlova, Nijinsky and Bolm. Apparently in this ballet Karsavina was attired in a fantastic costume reminiscent of a drawing of Aubrey Beardsley and danced against a background of Negro slaves, nude, except for a loin-cloth, their dark limbs set off by an occasional white ostrich plume worn as a bracelet or anklet. The ballet had a huge success, but the music today has been almost forgotten, which is a great pity, as it is one of the most masterly scores of the early 20th century.

I believe that, actually, the music was not specially composed for the Russians, but originally commissioned by Loie Fuller who danced it six years before in Paris in a completely different production, but it was not until the Russian performance that it really achieved world wide fame. It would have been just the sort of subject dear to Fuller's heart. She was never happier than when engaged in a "succès de scandale." On Sunday night we shall be able to hear a Suite from this Ballet played by the CBC Symphony Orchestra.

The flood of Handel continues, and on Tuesday night on the Dominion network we can hear some of his Joshua, one of his greatest oratorios. It was intended as a companion work to Judas Maccabeus and has been rather over-shadowed by the other work.

The texts of these oratorios have always given everybody a few un-

Royal Travellers. Britain's present Queen Elizabeth has probably travelled to more corners of the world and her Empire than did any of her predecessors. But other queens went on journeys too, and in the ages of Cleopatra, Catherine de Medici, and Elizabeth I the preparations were no less exacting than they are in the jet age. Olive Dickason, women's editor of the Weekly Globe and Mail in Toronto, reports on journeys fitted for a queen.

Among these residences is "La Maison Canadienne," the first foreign residence built when University City was planned by the French government in the early 1920's. Here Comes the Bride. Weddings in Burma are purely civil ceremonies. Buddhist priests do not take part in the ceremonies although there is sometimes, on the wedding day, a "soon offering" to a selected number of priests. A Burmese bride does not change her name when she is married, but there is an old Burmese proverb which says that a woman is beautiful when she is married. Today in the fifth of Matinee's eight-part series on marriage Sanda Simms talks about these and other marriage customs in her native Burma. Mrs. Simms is the daughter of Sao Shwe Thaik, Burma's first president, has studied anthropology, and is a news commentator for the Burma Broadcasting Service.

The laws of nature are not dull; they are exciting, because they express our feeling that under the wild variety of phenomena lies an order which is simple and beautiful. We do not explain nature away; we enrich our appreciation of her structure when we understand it. And the act of understanding, like the discovery, is an emotional as well as an intellectual adventure. — Dr. J. Bronowski, on BBC.

SQUARE DANCE STORY

developed by peasant communities were refined to more formal, less energetic dances suitable for elegant ballrooms, such as the quadrille. Other dances were born in Britain and Ireland, and the grace and humour of some of their steps have a decided Celtic flavour.

After a time the popularity of these group dances waned, but they found new life when they were brought to Canada by immigrants who found the square-dance one of the easiest and least expensive ways of entertaining themselves in pioneer settlements.

The shortage of women was an important factor in their popularity too. Any number of men could join the dance and those without feminine partners simply tied an arm-band on another man and off they pranced down the line as the fiddles played. Inevitably the dances were further influenced by their new surroundings and by the dances of other immigrants from Europe. Their traditions blended over the years into what is now a square-dancing fad.

And if you're not an addict, don't think that it's only the energetic teen-agers who swing their partners coast to coast. Grandpaw and Grandmaw are right in there, too, whirling and clapping their hands with ~~um~~ and Uncle Willie and anyone else who wants to get into the act.

Mike Bevan, of the CBC farms department, who plans and produces the Summer Fallow series, says he has discovered that the French-Canadian square dances have changed very little from the original versions of medieval France. The language barrier pre-easy moments. Gustav Holst, the famous English composer, in commenting on Handel's libretti, said, "I wanted to read the minor prophets but found there was too much Hitler in them for my taste." Joshua, I am afraid, is one of the worst offenders in this way and we never feel the sympathy with him that we do with Saul, Samson or Jephtha. In this oratorio there are, however, beautiful pastoral scenes which contain some of Handel's loveliest music and of course the battle sections are, as always with Handel, of the greatest force and conviction.

On CBC Wednesday Night we have a concert given as a tribute to the visit of Her Majesty the Queen to Canada. Our own Healey Willan has written a march especially for this occasion and Godfrey Ridout has written Music for a Young Prince, also for this special event. Included in the concert are some dances from Benjamin Britten's opera Gloriana. Gloriana is the opera which was written especially for the Coronation Year 1953 and had its first performance at Covent Garden that summer. Containing a great deal of Britten's most beautiful music, this opera also fell down over its libretto and, although it achieved a certain success at the time, it has not been revived since, although I feel it is high time that it should be.

Scherzo in B minor.....Chopin
Impromptu in G flat major.....Chopin
Nachtstueck in F major.....Schumann
Mephisto Waltz.....Liszt

Aline van Barentzen, a professor at the Paris Conservatoire, was born in Boston. A child prodigy, she gave her first concert at the age of four, and three years later she appeared with an orchestra in a public performance of Beethoven's Concerto No. 5. She continued her studies in Paris at the age of nine, and won the first prize for piano at the Conservatoire two years later. Subsequently she studied at the Royal Academy of Berlin (with Dohnanyi) and in Vienna (with Leschitzky). Madame van Barentzen has given hundreds of concerts in Europe and in North and South America. She is often asked by composers to give first hearings of their compositions, and many have dedicated works to her.

On CBC Wednesday Night

A Program of Royal Music

CBC Symphony program conducted by Geoffrey Waddington includes two new works commissioned by CBC

THE DAY before Queen Elizabeth arrives in Canada CBC Wednesday Night will present a musical welcome featuring the world premieres of two works commissioned especially for the occasion from Dr. Healey Willan, dean of Canadian composers, and Godfrey Ridout, his former pupil. They will be performed by the CBC Symphony Orchestra conducted by Dr. Geoffrey Waddington, CBC director of music.

Dr. Willan's work, tentatively titled Royal Tribute, is an eight-minute march in E flat, described by Terence Gibbs, Dr. Waddington's assistant, as "majestic, full of pomp and circumstance ending in a blaze of fanfare, and exactly the sort of music one wants on royal occasions." Dr. Willan has written several royal salutes for other occasions, including his Coronation March (1937) and Coronation Suite (1953), and he was the first Commonwealth composer commissioned to write one of the homage anthems for the 1953 coronation. Writing about Dr. Willan in the spring edition of the Canadian Music Journal, Godfrey Ridout says: "... he is capable of achieving a soaring splendour, rich with the shining gold and the purple of royalty." Still in harness at 79, Dr. Willan says "music has been for something like three-quarters of a century my chief delight, my chosen profession, my relaxation and my hobby." Three years ago the Archbishop of Canterbury awarded him the Lambeth Doctorate of Music, an honour never before conferred on a person outside the United Kingdom.

The second commissioned work, Godfrey Ridout's Music For a Young Prince, is a 20-minute suite in four parts. The composer says it's not a children's work, but rather "a work for second childhood! . . . a musical picture of Canadian aspects of childhood that might flit through an adult listener's mind when he thinks of a young prince." The first movement is a slow one titled Dreams, and the score bears a quotation from Charles Dickens: "The dreams of childhood . . . its airy fables, its graceful, beautiful, humane, impossible adornments of the world beyond." The second movement, describing a train ride, is called From the Caboose, and was inspired by an old railroad ballad: "With a clickety-clack a long mile back the crummy tails the drag, and now that night obscures the sight, the lamps replace the flag. With jolts and jars on the swaying cars they're bucking the ceaseless grind, while a twinkling light laughs at the night, from the little caboose behind." The third movement is a rootin'-tootin' western piece called The Cowboy and the Injun; and Mr. Ridout says the fourth, Pageantry, is best described in Walt Whitman's The Mystic Trumpeter: "... pass before me

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

June Brides. "Radiant" is a favourite word used by wedding guests and fashion writers to describe the appearance of the bride as she glides gracefully down the aisle on her wedding day. But the radiance may have come from a hectic dashing about doing last-minute errands — as Marlene Hunter of Vancouver discovered the day she was married. As a result she doesn't remember the wedding itself, but she does remember, and recounts in vivid detail, some of the chaos that preceded the wedding march.

Royal Visits. Today Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada, arrives to tour her domain from sea to sea. Jean Hinds, the CBC's morning commentator in Saskatchewan, has covered many a royal visit, and will be covering parts of this one. Today she offers some advice, opinions and apprehensions about royal tours and royal tourists.

National Council of Women. The annual meeting of the National Council of Women of Canada is being held this year at Wasagamung, a summer resort near Clear Lake, Manitoba, from June 10 to June 16. This is the first time that this organization has held an annual meeting at a spot other than a university campus. Among the many women present will be Joan Marshall, the CBC's morning commentator in the Maritimes and hostess of Halifax television's "Joan Marshall Show." She will report from Winnipeg on the proceedings at the conclusion of the meeting.

Regular Features . . . Today's news commentary is by Ann Francis of Ottawa. Halifax soprano Audrey Farnell will introduce some more of her favourite recorded music, and Amelia Hall will read another excerpt from Jessamyn West's "To See the Dream."

La Strada

• As it is necessary to have a wide assortment of programs to entertain everyone I have refrained from complaining until now — and this isn't really a complaint. I was disappointed that due to hockey we missed seeing the film La Strada on "Folio." Now that "Folio" is going off TV for the summer does that mean that we will not be seeing La Strada? Thanks for all the wonderful programs that you have given us.—M. A., Winnipeg.

"La Strada" was not scheduled as a "Folio" presentation but as a replacement for "Folio" during the N.H.L. playoffs when there was a possibility that a live "Folio" production would have had to be pre-empted by a hockey game. If "La Strada" is re-scheduled it will be announced in CBC Times. Incidentally, "La Strada" is still playing the theatres, and M. A. has an opportunity of seeing it this week in Winnipeg.

• I started listening to Polka Party and Prairie Schooner two weeks ago, and wish it could have been sooner. You will have a steady listener here from now on. You will never know how much I love and enjoy that wonderful type of music and the lovely singers. I hope you may be on the radio as long as you like. Bless all you wonderful friends out there and thank you very much.—Flossie Visser, Lynden, Washington.

• My dial remains at CBW until around 11:00 p.m. when other powerful American stations begin to cause interference. I, and many others down here in the northern states, prefer your programs to our own because of the small amount of advertising. Here in the States advertising is beginning to monopolize more and more station time with fantastic, unbelievable claims.—A. A. Freiburger, Longville, Minn.

These comments from listeners to our network stations in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver are typical of those we receive regularly from the U.S. The Winnipeg programs mentioned have been favourites in the U.S. for many years.

venting French - Canadian communities from mixing with the English - speaking ones has also kept the old French dances free from outside influences. St. Malo, where Jacques Cartier came from, was famous for its dances, and some of them are still being danced in rural Quebec very much as they were in Cartier's heyday. Many of the expressions used by modern callers are corruptions of the French, such as do-si-do (deux-adeux), and allamand, left (à la main).

The caller, who chants out his instructions to the dancers just a little ahead of the action, is a comparatively recent addition to the square-dance set-up. He replaced the casual prompter of old, but there the resemblance ends, for the caller has made his sing-song twang and witty rhymes of prime importance to the dance. Some callers have built up quite a reputation for themselves far beyond their own communities. So much a part of our culture has the square-dance now become that the Banff School of Fine Arts conducts a Square Dance Institute. Its fourth annual session starts June 29th. The most appealing thing about hoedowns is the fact that it requires little skill to join in the fun . . . of course some dancers have perfected their technique to professional standards, but the average square-dance is open to anyone with enough energy to shout "Come on, boys, grab your partners and let's dance!"

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Father's Day. Sunday, June 21 is Father's Day. In a Toronto school eight-graders were recently asked to write compositions about the father's role in the family. Some of the ideas expressed in the essays startled parents and teachers alike by their insight and their maturity. Roberta Lincoln, a Toronto housewife, writer and freelance broadcaster and mother of four children, reports.

A Book I Like. When Hilary Brown of Vancouver selects a book for serious reading she wants its author to have an interesting personality, she wants the book well written, and she wants the subject matter to be significant and important. "The Long March" by Simon de Beauvoir, which she talks about today, qualifies on all three counts.

At the Movies. Louise Bresky of Vancouver reviews some of the latest movies playing in Vancouver. The speaker is a former television and movie critic with the Seattle Times; she now lives in Vancouver where she is engaged in criticizing television—on television—and other types of critical broadcasting.

Canadian Welfare Council. The 39th annual meeting of the Canadian Welfare Council will be held in Ottawa June 15-17. Among the topics to be discussed are welfare measures ladies and cavaliers long dead. Barons are in their castle halls. The troubadours are singing. Armed knights go forth to redress wrongs, some in quest of the Holy Grail."

"Early in May," Ridout says, "Terence Gibbs called me and wanted to know how fast a composer I was. Then he asked me to write a suite along the lines of the one Elgar wrote for the two princesses when they were children." But Music For a Young Prince has a subtle sophistication meant more for adults. Ridout already was up to the ears in work, marking exam papers for the University of Toronto, where he lectures in the music department, but he got himself organized, and turned out this interesting new work on schedule. Six years ago the CBC commissioned his Coronation Ode for chorus and orchestra, and it was presented on CBC Radio shortly before Queen Elizabeth was crowned. He has written many background scores for radio and television plays, and conducts frequently on CBC shows.

The CBC Wednesday Night concert will include three other orchestral works: Introduction and Allegro for String Quartet and String Orchestra, by Sir Edward Elgar; a suite of dances from Gloriana, Benjamin Britten's opera based on the life of Elizabeth I, and written especially for the coronation celebrations of Elizabeth II; and excerpts from Handel's Water Music, which he wrote for George I, and which has a link . . . albeit a tenuous one! . . . with the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

On the three weeks' proving flight from which I have recently returned I learnt two important lessons; they are to keep both your slippers and your bathing costume with you in the aircraft. There's nothing more bitter than to find yourself at Wake Island looking at a lovely warm sea and to know that your bathing trunks are locked in the baggage hold.—BBC air correspondent Reginald Turnill.
